

Holiday Historic Walking Tour

HOW THE TOUR WORKS:

- Tours are free and ongoing from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m.
- Open to the public and all ages.
- Please be respectful of these privately-owned historic homes and buildings on the tour, and the personal possessions, furniture, etc. that are inside them. The owners would appreciate if tour participants refrained from sitting on the beds, visiting closed off doors/sections, or any other disruptive actions.
- While there will be guides at some locations, most of the tour is self-guided.
- No reservations required.
- You are welcome to drive or walk the route.
- There is no particular order. Feel free to visit just one or all of the locations.
- For further details call Downtown South Bend, Inc. at 574.282.1110.

8 Washington-Dunbar Corner

118 N. Walnut Street
574.289.1066 · sbheritage.org

Completed in 1992 as a historic tax credit development in partnership with the Indiana Housing & Community Development Authority, National Park Service, Historic Preservation and City of South Bend, Historic Dunbar Corner was completed by South Bend Heritage Foundation as one of the first affordable rental housing tax credit developments in the City. The million dollar project includes the renovation of seven historic homes built circa 1898. The homes had fallen into disrepair and were absentee owned rental properties that were causing a negative impact of the neighborhood. Today, Historic Dunbar Corner has been combined with West Washington Homes to form Washington-Dunbar Homes within the South Bend Heritage rental portfolio. Historic Dunbar Corner contains 15 rental apartments ranging from one to three bedroom units.

9 St. Paul's Memorial Church

1001 West Colfax Avenue
574.234.6940 · stpaulsmemorial.com

St. Paul's is aglow and this historic gem is ready for the holidays. Completed in 1903, the church is designed in the 15th century English Gothic style. It was a gift to the congregation from Clement Studebaker and his wife Ann. The church windows and skylights are stunning one-of-a-kind art glass works created by Germany's Mayer and Company. Each window throughout the church tells a biblical story with a series of 13 windows portraying the life of Jesus. St. Paul's also contains one of the largest pipe organs in South Bend, which has just been beautifully rebuilt by Berghaus Pipe Organ Company of Bellwood, IL, with front pipes freshly covered in gold leaf, and a sound quality no one who has been a part of this church in the past has experienced. The ancient baptismal font dates from the 12th century and is believed to have been created by Roman marble workers; it may be the oldest baptismal font in the United States still in use. The Wesley Pulpit, located inside the sanctuary, is an exact model of John Wesley's original pulpit located in the City Road Chapel in London, England. Visitors will be serenaded by holiday music on the new pipe organ throughout the day.

1 Remedy Building

404 West Washington Street
574.633.7537 · denolfs.com

The Remedy Building was built in 1895 as the office and headquarters of the South Bend Remedy Company, a mail order pharmaceuticals house. This lovely Queen Anne style building is embellished with garlands, sea shells, egg and dart and other decorative motifs. The building was originally constructed on LaSalle Avenue near Lafayette and was moved in 1988 to the corner of William and Colfax. Threatened again in 2000 it was relocated to its current site and restored by Indiana Landmarks. The Remedy Building now houses De Nolf's Barbershop.

2 Tippecanoe Place

620 West Washington Street
574.234.9077 · tippe.com

Tippecanoe Place mansion has a rich and colorful history. Built by famed industrialist Clem Studebaker from 1886-1889, the grand home has four main levels totaling 40 rooms and 20 fireplaces and is the embodiment of everything great wealth in the late 1800s could suggest. The 26,000 square-foot mansion was designed by Henry Cobb and built by local craftsmen. Work on Tippecanoe Place was completed in 1889 at a total cost of $250,000. The massive walls are made of local granite fieldstone, and the many broad porches are paved with tile and supported by stone pillars. The mansion, however, was to be more than simply a monument to the architecture and craftsmanship of the period. It would serve as the setting for many lavish parties, weddings, and balls.

Today Tippecanoe Place, the restaurant, indulges clientele in grand cuisine and noble wine - all within an atmosphere of unparalleled ambiance at the heart of the South Bend business and social scene. Join them for self-guided tours of the mansion throughout the day and make reservations to attend Sunday brunch from 10 a.m. until 2 p.m. Sunday Brunch with Santa Claus at Tippecanoe Place takes place Dec. 4, 11, & 18. Call for brunch reservations.

3 The Oliver Inn

630 West Washington Street
574.232.4545 · oliverinn.com

Step inside for an enchanting glimpse of Christmas at the turn of the century. The Victorian romance of this home reflects the lives and times of one of South Bend's most famous families, the Olivers. James Oliver built the house in 1886 as a gift to his daughter, Josephine Oliver Ford, "for a $1.00 and love." This beautiful one of a kind, Queen Anne home was designed for entertaining. The downstairs rooms are spacious and inviting with its seven fireplaces and original Waterford crystal sconces. The Oliver Inn is a great place for a weekend getaway, visiting out-of-town guests, or an intimate party.

4 The Warner House

710 West Washington Street

The Warner House was built in 1873 for David and Martha Warner and their family. David Warner was a highly-respected businessman who made many contributions to the progress of South Bend in its early days. After farming in the county for fifteen years he moved his family to the city, first owning a grocery business, then later shifting to the sale of agricultural implements. Mr. Warner also built and owned several commercial and residential properties in South Bend. Ownership of the Warner House remained in the family for three generations. The exterior of the home was designed in the Italianate style, and the ornate Queen Anne Victorian-style porch was added in 1890. The interior of the home boasts grand twelve foot ceilings, a gorgeous slate fireplace, and beautiful trim and woodwork made of rare old-growth poplar, much of which is in the process of being stripped of paint and restored. The current owners, Kerry and Karen Joseph, are putting lots of love and care into several home restoration projects. You can follow their progress on Instagram at @blueladyofthebend.

5 Taylor House

724 West Washington Street

Prominent South Bend architects Austin and Shambleau designed this bungalow styled home in 1904 for James N. Taylor and his family. Mr. Taylor was the secretary with the Indiana Lumber and Manufacturing Company which may account for the fine materials and craftsmanship of this home. The exterior of the home has a sweep style roof, cedar shingles separated by a quarter round bead, single hung windows with diagonal paned transoms above and Classical Revival front and side porches with Corinthian columns. The interior is a blend of Colonial Revival and Prairie style elements with a traditional colonial stairway, red mahogany pocket doors and trim in the dining room, a Prairie style parlor with quarter sawn oak trim and four fireplaces. Anne Mannix and Rich Williams purchased this home in 1994.

6 The Bowman House

920 W. Washington

The Bowman house is a 1902 Queen Anne Free Classic. It was designed by South Bend architects George W. Freyermuth and R. Vernon Maurer, and constructed by Charles Martin. Designated a local landmark by the Historic Preservation Commission of South Bend and St. Joseph County, the home stood at 524 N. Lafayette Street from 1902 to 1979. The home was built for Luzetta Fox Bowman, the widow of David Bowman whose family was among the earliest settlers in St. Joseph County. She lived there with her son and daughter-in-law, John and Margaret Bowman, whose portraits still hang in the parlor, and their two sons. Margaret remained in the home with her youngest son until her death in 1978.

In 1978, the South Bend Medical Foundation purchased the house and donated it to South Bend Heritage, which offered it for sale for the cost of moving it. On Nov. 20, 1979, its new owners, Patrick Moon and Peggy Maure, watched the 180-ton structure make its one-mile journey to W. Washington Street. The couple worked meticulously to restore the home over many years, notably preserving the fieldstone porch and rebuilding it exactly as it had been. The home's interior retains many original details, including woodwork, stained glass, light switches, chandeliers, maid's call box, butler's pantry, carriage stepping stone, and room keys. In 2016, Patrick Moon sold the home to its current residents

7 Notre Dame Center for Civic Innovation

1045 West Washington Street
574.631.3249 · civicinnovation.nd.edu

Visit the national historic building known as the Notre Dame Center for Civic Innovation (CCI) as they host a children's gallery walk, as well as their very first Holiday Market. Enjoy visiting Santa, holiday decor, art, and vendors as you sip on a warm beverage. The historic building was erected in 1925 as the Children's Dispensary, before it became the Hansel Community Center, followed by the Notre Dame Center for Arts and Culture in 2012. The Notre Dame College of Engineering's Center for Civic Innovation moved into the building in 2019. They collaborate to meet community needs and advance the greater good through research, innovation, and technology. CCI also houses Educational Children's Programming that offers the community an experience of inspirational education through art and design thinking.
